

Food Fit for a King

Writer's Tip

- In a review, it is important to describe things clearly.
- Use specific adjectives to help the reader picture what is being described.

Sala is a lovely restaurant on Bowery Street. A funky, candle-lit Spanish spot, Sala is a taste of heaven. You can choose from many tasty meals. The menu glitters with promises of fabulous food . . . and it delivers. Everything I put into my mouth was wonderful.

The tapas, or appetizers, are fantastic. They are even better to share with a friend. The main dishes include oxtail, lamb, chicken, and fish. If the fish were any fresher, it would swim right off your plate! The side dishes are also outstanding. For vegetarians, Sala has the most delicious salads you will ever come across. The vegetables always taste very fresh.

The atmosphere is reason enough to check out Sala. The decorations and music make you feel as though you are in Spain. So, if you are ever in the mood for a little taste of Spain, be sure to stop in to Sala for an unforgettable meal.

Precise Adjectives

- ▶ Reread the passage and circle the precise adjectives. Write the adjectives, and what they help describe, in the chart below.

Adjective	What It Describes

Your Turn

- ▶ Think about the review you are writing. Decide what things you will describe. Think of precise adjectives to describe them. Write your ideas in the chart below.

Adjective	What It Describes

- ▶ Use your graphic organizer to write a paragraph of your review using precise adjectives.