

Writer's Tip

- Use descriptive details to help create a picture in the reader's mind.
- Use details that appeal to the reader's sense of sight, smell, taste, and hearing.

Dining that's out of this WORLD

If you want a truly unique dining experience, blast off to Mars 2112. When you get there, the first thing you notice is that the cavernous interior is glowing Martian red. On the walls you'll find paintings that show alien diners who look real enough to make you wonder where in the universe you are!

The food at this award-winning restaurant is also worth the rocket ride. There is something for everyone here. All the dishes have great names, like Martian Mole Chicken Wrap, Little Green Salad from Mars, and Red Wrap Lobster. Don't worry though; the food tastes delicious to Earthlings, too.

The Red Wrap Lobster had chunks of tender lobster meat, fresh lettuce and tomatoes, and just enough spicy mayonnaise to give it a little kick. Then it was all rolled up in a sun-dried tomato wrap.

And don't forget dessert. The Martian Moon Pie was stellar. It's a pink mountain of strawberry-vanilla ice cream wedged between two large chocolate cookies and topped with gooey marshmallow sauce. That's one small bite for a man, one giant bite for mankind.

Descriptive Details

▶ Reread the passage and circle the descriptive details that help you picture the restaurant and the food. Then write them on the lines below.

- ① _____
- ② _____
- ③ _____

Your Turn

▶ Think about the review you are writing. Think of the descriptive details that you will use. Write your ideas in the chart below.

▶ Use your chart to write a paragraph of your review using descriptive details.