

A Special Place

Ever since I heard about the "Ice Bowl," I wanted to go there. It's the most special place. It's Lambeau Field in Green Bay, Wisconsin. The Ice Bowl was a famous game. On December 31, 1967, the temperature at game time was very cold—13 degrees below zero. Lucky for all those Packers fans at the football game, their team won. That's not the only great thing that has happened at Lambeau Field. The other special thing that happened there is that my dad took me and my brother for a game. It wasn't as cold as the Ice Bowl. And we won!

The Storm of the Century

If you believe that the storm of the century was a blizzard, you'd be wrong. If you guessed tornadoe or flood, you'd still be wrong. If you guessed it was a combination of all three—blizzard, tornadoe, and flood—you'd be right! This crazy storm was called a Nor'easter. In a Nor'easter, winds blow really hard from the northeast, especially along the Northeast coast. In 1993, one of these storms closed down most airports on the east coast. It dumped snow in the north and caused almost 50 tornadoes!

How to make a bed

1. Firstly be prepared with the clean sheets.

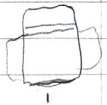

2. Next, take off all the covers and sheets including pillowcases off the bed.

3. ^{When you} make sure that the bottom fitted sheet is going the ^{right} direction. Put the sheet ~~on~~ with the long side going down the bed and pull the corners so that everything is smooth.

4. Take the top sheet and place it on the bed so that the same amount of sheet hangs on each side. The top should be folded neatly about 4 inches. ^{on the bottom end of the bed} the sheet will hang down a lot.

5. Push in the ^{bottom first then fold and push in} corners so that it looks like the  corner of an envelop.

6. Put the cases on. 7. Add on the bed case. 8. Add pillows.
