

Dear Mrs. Jones,

I'm reading Warriors: Midnight which is part of The New Prophecy series by Erin Hunter. From what I just read, they found the sundown place and a badger told them all they needed to know. Trouble awaits them. Now they must get back to their clans and warn them that "two legs" are coming with big machines.

Firestar (the Thunder Clan leader) has been through a lot of different emotions. At first, he was acting fishy towards his daughter and son. That's when they left. Now he feels depressed and wants them to come back. I predict Firestar will reunite with his kids, and that he'll run into trouble on the way.

I appreciate the way the author creates suspense in this book. It makes me want to keep reading it!

Sincerely,
Gregory

Dear Mrs. Smith,

I read in Meanwhile, Back in Deadwood by Ann Charles. It is about a girl who is a ghost hunter in Deadwood, South Dakota. She is trying to find and eliminate a ghost from an old hotel. It is a funny book too, because she is always finding some kind of trouble. The main character feels angry because she can't find the ghost. I'm wondering if she will be able to find it and if she'll be able to get it to leave. I think it's going to be hard for her since so many things keep going wrong. She seems determined, though, so she might have some luck.

I have connection with this book because I've been to Deadwood before. I even stayed in an old hotel that might have been haunted!

Your an awesome Reader,
Michaela.
