

Book Recommendation

Flying Solo by Ralph Fletcher is a story about a class of fifth graders and what they do one day when their substitute teacher doesn't show up. Can they get away with being responsible for their own learning for the whole day or will someone snitch on them?

I would recommend this book to anyone who enjoys realistic fiction filled with interesting, life-like characters. Mr. Fletcher uses humor and suspense throughout the book to make situations seem real and exciting.

When I finished the book, I was wondering if kids could really "run the class" by flying solo. I think they could!
