You are Bluti, a six-year-old from the planet Bloog. You moved to Earth last year when your father got a new job. You started kindergarten and couldn't understand anything that anyone was saying to you—after all, you only spoke Bloogian! But on your first day, everyone was so kind. Kids helped you learn new words, and pretty soon you were playing together. Now you're in first grade, and a new girl from Bloog is coming to your class tomorrow. You know just how she might be feeling. Because everyone was so kind to you last year, it made a huge difference. You want everyone to do the same for her. In a letter to your first-grade classmates, tell them why you think kindness is the best way to treat someone new. Share your experience as reasons (evidence): If everyone is kind to the new student, then it will make your classroom a better place.
