You are an author and illustrator who writes informational books about animals for children. You're almost done writing your next book, and you think it's your best book yet. It happens to include one of your favorites: painted turtles. All you have left to do is to finish the text feature at the back of the book. You saved the best for last! Now you'll be writing a fact and some details about painted turtles and drawing a picture. The name should be in bold print, of course. You can't wait to inform your readers about some of the super-cool facts and details you know about painted turtles!
