You are the exhibit designer for your local wildlife park. You are quite proud of the fact that your park has won numerous awards for its clever and informative habitat signs, which reveal facts and details not normally known by the general public. You've just gotten a new assignment: to design a series of informational signs for the giraffe exhibit. You decide to focus on something new to most visitors: giraffe tongues. Create several signs that can be mounted by the giraffe area of the park to inform visitors about this animal's unique and useful tongue.
