You are Orville, the famous Penguinaut! You're on your way home from your amazing trip to the moon. As your ship heads back to Earth, you have lots of time to decide what to tell your friends about it. You had such fun and learned a lot. Now you know that you can really do things—BIG things—all by yourself, but also that it can be lonely without friends. As soon as you land, you'll give a speech to your friends, telling the story of your very big adventure. Write and draw your speech. Include good details that show just how much you've learned and changed along the way!

Role: Orville, the Penguinaut
