

A Busy First Day

The President has a lot to do today. Read the paragraph. Then fill in the President's schedule below.

President Obama's First Day

The President wakes up at 7 a.m. Then he eats breakfast and reads the newspaper. At 9 a.m., President Obama meets with his new advisers. Advisers help the President decide how to make the country better. At 11 a.m., the President signs a new law to build more schools. At 12 p.m., President Obama eats lunch with his wife, Michelle, the First Lady. An hour later, the President makes a speech on TV. At 3 p.m., the President talks to a group of people. They ask President Obama to save a forest from being cut down. After the meeting, the President works at his desk at 6 p.m. He goes to a fancy dinner at 8 p.m.

7 a.m. _____

9 a.m. _____

11 a.m. _____

___ p.m. eat lunch with the First Lady

1 p.m. _____

___ p.m. talk to a group of people about forests

4 p.m. _____

___ p.m. work at desk

8 p.m. _____