This paper is being sent home to hopefully continue conversations at home about what we are doing in school. We have been talking about past or present or “right now” and “way back when”. This goes along perfectly with Thanksgiving and why we celebrate it but it also was a very important concept we talked about at Veteran’s Day. Because we are just learning about how yesterday, today and tomorrow (past and present) I want to help my kids make a great connection that they will hopefully remember. This assignment needs to be completed and returned to school. The actual assignment will be on the back of this sheet. The student will have drawn their favorite toy on the left hand side of the page and they will spell the name of the toy as best as we could. I want you to talk to your student about their favorite toy and then draw your favorite toy from “way back when” you were their age! 😊 Have them use words to describe their toy to you and then use your picture and great descriptive words to talk about your favorite toy with them. You can then discuss how the toys are alike (maybe they are both from a movie or they both have wheels) and how they are different (battery operated and not or riding toy and a small handheld game). I hope you have fun hearing about their favorite toy and enjoy sharing about your favorite toy with them because making these real world connections is so important! Thank you for all of the support you have given to our classroom this year and I can’t wait to see the finished product.
