ABOUT THE AUTHOR

At the age of 11, Jennifer A. Nielsen wrote her first full-length novel. As a kid growing up in northern Utah, she constantly read and reread The Wolves of Willoughby Chase by Joan Aiken. Other favorite classics included The Outsiders by S. E. Hinton, A Wrinkle in Time by Madeleine L’Engle, and the Hardy Boys series.

A major influence for The False Prince, the first book in Nielsen’s Ascendance Trilogy, came from the music of Eddie Vedder, the lead singer of the seminal grunge band Pearl Jam. From Vedder’s lyrics “I knew all the rules, but the rules did not know me,” Sage, her protagonist, was born.

Jennifer is also the author of Elliot and the Goblin War, the first book in a humorous middle-grade fantasy series. She lives in northern Utah with her husband and their three children. For more information about the author, visit: www.jennielsen.com.

OVERVIEW

Book Summary

In the medieval kingdom of Carthya, a civil war is brewing. The royal family has been murdered, and a scheming nobleman named Conner plans to replace the kingdom’s long-lost prince with an imposter so that he can rule from behind the scenes. After scouring the land, Conner finds an orphan named Sage and three others to prepare for the role. The boys are brought to Conner’s palace and forced to compete against each other to learn the ways of a nobleman. At the end of their training, one of them will be chosen to be Conner’s false prince, while the other three—well, surely they know too much and can’t be allowed to live.

Sage is a rebellious and sharp-tongued wisecracker who refuses to bow down to anyone. The young pickpocket has been bounced from orphanage to orphanage, always on the run from trouble. Now he must reluctantly play Conner’s game and become the prince or find a way to escape death. Sage and the remaining two orphans—Tobias and Roden—are pitted against each other during the two-week testing period. Conner leads them down a tangled path of incredible lies and shocking truths. Secrets are revealed, alliances forged, backs stabbed, and—at last—the false prince is chosen.

And, yet, further truths and lies are yet to be told in this action-packed adventure filled with deceit, danger, and hidden identities.
Get Ready to Read

Pre-Reading Activities

The False Prince  Engage students by showing them the The False Prince page at the Scholastic website: http://bit.ly/10vwZPD. Begin with the “Lose The Game, Lose Your Life” video trailer, which sets up the action with a dramatic narration and image sequence. Project the website on the whiteboard or a screen.

Then have students, individually or as a group, play the “Are You the False Prince?” game, answering the multiple-choice questions. Encourage them to compare their responses and then figure out what the correct responses would be for a real “false prince.”

Preview and Predict  Ask students to discuss the video trailer and the cover of the book and predict what they think the novel is about. What conflicts might the characters face? How will a character be able to prove himself as the false prince?

Vocabulary

Words of Deceit  The plot of The False Prince is full of deceit, disguise, double identities, and words that describe them. Ask students to watch for the following words as they read the book. Encourage them to look for clues in the text to figure out the meanings, then check the dictionary definitions, and write them on the vocabulary cards.

Use Resource #1: Vocabulary Cards on page 7 and distribute copies to students.

impersonate (p. 80)  replica (p. 105) imitators (p. 128)  swindler (p. 128)
fraud (p. 306)  traitors (p. 312)

BIG QUESTION

Critical Thinking  Ask students to think about this question as they read and be ready to answer it when they have finished the book. Write the question on chart paper or have students record it in their reading journals.

Who is the real master of deceit?

As You Read

Reading the Book

Modeled Reading  Read aloud several pages from the first chapter of the book or the complete first chapter, asking students to follow along. As you read, model the strategy of questioning the text. For example, questions might include: Who is telling the story? Why is he stealing the meat? How did he become an orphan? Who is the man named Connor who purchased Sage from the orphanage? Encourage students to ask other questions about the first chapter and answer them together.

Independent Reading  Assign students to read The False Prince independently. Encourage them to discuss the book with a partner as they read, asking questions and sharing responses about what is happening in the story.

Comprehension Focus

Compare and Contrast  The plot of The False Prince revolves around the competition between three boys—Sage, Tobias, and Roden—to impersonate Prince Jaron. Connor often compares each of the orphaned boys to the prince and to each other. Help students integrate the information that they learn about Sage, Tobias, and Roden and compare them to the prince by creating a comparison and contrast matrix. By analyzing the results, they can make predictions and inferences about who will become the false prince, and explain why.

Display the matrix Resource #2: Compare and Contrast Matrix on page 8 on a whiteboard or screen. Then model how to fill out the first set of information for the category of education.

Model: I’m going to use this matrix to help me compare and contrast Sage, Tobias, and Roden with Prince Jaron. The first category is education. I know that Prince Jaron was well educated by his tutors at the castle, so I’ll write “well-educated” under his name. Although Sage is smart, he seems as if he has not had a formal education. I’ll write “poorly educated and is impatient with lessons” under his name. For Tobias, I’ll write “knows how to read, has read a lot.” For Roden, I’ll write “cannot read, but is learning quickly.” If I had to choose the boy who is most like Prince Jaron in this category, it would be Tobias.

Pass out copies of Resource #2 and guide students to fill it out for the remaining categories as they read the novel.

After You Read

Questions to Discuss

Lead students in a discussion of these focus story elements.

1. Fantasy Compare this fantasy with other fantasies that you have read. What parts of the book could exist in our world? What parts could not exist in our world? (Sample answers: This fantasy is not as extreme as some like Gregor the Overlander. The people act like real human beings; only the countries are made up.)

2. Compare and Contrast How does Sage behave like Prince Jaron during the two-week trial? How does he behave differently from the prince to maintain his disguise? (Sample answer: He is as rebellious and wily as the prince; however, he pretends to be uneducated and to have a different accent to keep Connor from guessing his true identity.)

3. Words of Deceit Do you think Sage will be less deceitful now that he is King Jaron? (Sample answer: I think King Jaron will continue to be deceitful if it is necessary.)

Questions to Share

Encourage students to share their responses with a partner or small group.

1. Text-to-Self Which of the orphans do you identify with most in the first part of the book? How would you react to Connor’s plan?

2. Text-to-World What would it be like to be a real member of royalty? What would it be like to be the child of the president of the United States?

3. Text-to-Text What other books have you read, or what movies have you seen, that involve double identities? Why do you think this is such a popular theme?

Words of Deceit

Draw a concept map with the word deceit in the middle on a whiteboard or chart paper. Define deceit for students as “intentional dishonesty meant to mislead.” Ask volunteers to add one vocabulary word at a time to the concept map. Have students define the word and then use it in a sentence with deceit or another vocabulary word. Build the map until all the words are included.
Extension Activities

Reading/Writing Connection

Point of View  Ask students to find the important turning point of the novel when we learn that Sage is in fact the real Prince Jaron (Chapter 42, page 258). Before then, Sage narrates the story in the first person. In Chapters 42 and 43, the author writes the story in the third person. After that, Prince Jaron tells the story in the first person. Challenge students to choose a chapter in the novel to write from a different character’s point of view; for example, with Tobias, Imogen, Amarinda, Connor, or Roden telling the story.

Content Area Connections

Government  Monarchies  The times of kings and queens and princes seem to belong to the Middle Ages; however, there are still many monarchies in the world today. Ask interested students to research the monarchies that are still governing countries in the present time and the powers that they hold. Guide students to the Info Please website by visiting: http://bit.ly/W4C2z5. Ask students to report back to the class on the kinds of governments in these countries and the powers of their monarchies.

History  Royals  Assign students to research the British royals today or English royals from the past. The story of the two princes in the Tower of London presents an interesting connection to the tale of deceit in The False Prince. For information, visit the BBC website at: http://bbc.in/W2cKCN. There is a wealth of information about present and past British royals at: http://bit.ly/WHluwx.

Literature  The Sword in the Stone  Ask students to read the legend of the young King Arthur told in the story The Sword in the Stone. Provide students with a version of the story or help them access one through the Internet. Have them compare and contrast King Arthur (Wart) with Prince Jaron (Sage). Discuss the recurring idea in both books and movies of royalty in disguise.

Science and Engineering  Castles  In the last part of the book, Sage returns to the castle that was his home. Ask interested students to research the architecture of medieval castles and how they were built. Suggest that students visit the History Learning website at: http://bit.ly/13xa709. Guide students to research how castles were built as fortifications and then have them report on their research to the rest of the class.

BIG ACTIVITY

The King’s Advisor  Remind students that King Jaron needs trustworthy advisors to help him make decisions. This activity thrusts students into the role of advisor to the king. Ask students to first decide what issue or person they will advise the king on; for example: Should he marry Amarinda? Would Imogen be a better choice? What should he do with Tobias? Connor? Roden?

Make copies of the Big Activity: The King’s Advisor on page 5 and distribute them to students to use as a template for their letter of advice to the king.

BIG QUESTION

Critical Thinking  Give each student an opportunity to answer the big question. Encourage students to support their answers with details and evidence from the text. Remind them that there is more than one right answer.

Who is the real master of deceit?
BIG ACTIVITY: The King’s Advisor

Write a letter to King Jaron in your role as the king’s advisor. Choose a person or issue to advise him about and support your advice with reasons from the text.
