Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass were two of the most influential men of the 19th century, rising from humble beginnings to become great leaders. Each man had strong opinions on one of the most pressing concerns of the time: slavery.

- Early Life

- Education

- The Issue of Slavery

Conclusions and New Understandings