

Food Review Lingo: The Language of Food Critics

Think you have what it takes to write reviews? Are you descriptive enough?

GENERAL WORDS delicious a pinch of... fresh tomato sauce rye bread French bread Cherry tomatoes dripping romaine lettuce icebox cake delectable plentiful syrupy floury baked smoky saltiness mountain bread quart stewed tomatoes soaked in drizzled in sandwiched delightful semi-sweet loaded with lemony broiled watery crunch Italian bread coarseness caramelized hand-tossed whipped a work of art bitter	healthy drenched in sizzling stuffing crunchy tender absorbed tangy egg-coated moist Iceberg lettuce barbeque tart melt in your mouth KNOW YOUR MEATS!  well-done rare flank (thin steak) Filet Mignon Steak kabobs ground beef New York Strip Steak CHEESY CHEESE  American Mozzarella Romaine Provolone cheddar Swiss cheese cubes Monterrey Jack	PUT THEM OUT OF BUISNESS... degradable deplorable charcoaled below standard below par stale raw cold chewy rough tough generic microwave passable acceptable atrocious hard fusty out of date awful unacceptable unappealing unpleasant unlikable inedible poisonous indigestible unpalatable indigestible unfit for consumption revolting dreadful dire poor dismal unfortunate lethal toxic stuffy horrific
--	--	--