The Whole Truth.

Getting the whole truth requires reading across multiple text types and exploring various media of a given subject matter. Exposing students to a variety of content brings voices to a subject and requires students to synthesize information to build their own truth. By providing videos, eBooks, articles, primary sources, first-person accounts, poems and more, each unit of study in TrueFlix offers an array of entry points into the learning materials—making TrueFlix both an approachable and engaging differentiated learning tool.
